B2C SERVICES

1 BUSINESS PROMO

A business promo is your flagship video that highlights the customer's story in their mind and how working with you will help improve their life.

We'd use our 9-part story framework to tell the story about your company, services and illustrate what the customer's life will look when they work with you.

2 SERVICE PROMO

Most B2C service companies we've worked with don't offer just ONE service, they have an array of services.

So naturally the prospect is going to research about the specific service they are interested in.

This is where a service promo comes in; its a video that specifically highlights one service and explains the problem in the customer's mind and how this service will solve it.

3 SOCIAL VIDEOS

Marketing your services on social can be really powerful when attracting new customers. First you have to identify what social platforms your customers are on then create a series of social videos & test performance.

The goal of the social video is to be short and drive engagement with comments, likes and ideally clicks to the product landing page. You'll want to create a series of videos so you can test what message, visuals and content is resonating with your audience.

4 CUSTOMER TESTIMONIALS

Most people don't like be the first to test out a new service or business they don't know much about.

Which is why video testimonials can be a powerful way to showing social proof and highlighting natural objections your prospects have, by framing them in the context of a customer testimonial video.

OUR RECOMMENDATION

You mentioned that you're in the B2C service industry. With most clients we've worked in this space, local competition is very high.

Having core differentiators both in your offering and marketing can be the difference between success and failure.

With a series of videos you'll be able to more effectively highlight what you offer, how it's different and why prospects should choose you over your local competition.
